No. 850.]

BUENOS AYRES, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1842.

[Established in 1826.

BUENOS AYRES.

We have no news from Entreríos this week beyond the fact that Rivera had precipitately retreated on the advance of the Confederate army under the command of General Oribe.—General Urquiza, with the Entrerian militia, and General Servando Gómez, with a division lately despatched from this Province, had placed themselves in communication with the army and were marching in combination with its movements. On setting out General Urquiza had issued the following #### Proclamation.

The tocsin of war so musical, valiant soldiers of the Entrerian army, to your ears, and so terrific to the perfidious unitarians, has sounded. It announces to you the happy hour of march, and to the ruthless unitarians that of the fatal termination of their nefarious treason to the country, and of their numberless robberies of your substance. Let us go, faithful soldiers of Federation, to conquer fate, and compel incessant fortune to deny the infamous Rivera her favours. He is the monster against whom Federal vengeance is most directed; he who has attempted to sully the dignity of the Confederation; he who has so often pointed the treacherous dagger against our fellow countrymen; he who, with his hordes, has reduced to a frightful desert our delicious land, and left your children in misery and orphanage. Partisans and robbers are not prisoners of war, nor objects of clemency. You have sworn to exterminate them; fulfil your vow, and avenge your country. It is the will of Heaven, and the express order of your General, compatriot and friend—

JERVO J. DE URQUIZA.

Extract from the leading article of the Gaceta of 1st inst.

The military mutiny of the 1st of December 1828, perpetrated by the miscreant unitarians against the legal and beneficent authority of H. E. the Governor Don Manuel Dorrego, revealed to the people and to the world the means employed by those perfidious men to attain the object of the treacherous plan initiated in the crutch of the act styled National Presidency.—The men who declared so much about order, principles, liberty and guarantees, the pretended friends of national organization, those who were ever making a boast of Constitution and Liberty, the Unitarians, the miscreant Unitarians, sallied out to the camp of lawless disorder at the front of the seduced and mutineer army, hoisting the standard of rebellion, and substituting their caprices and the sword of the matineers for the sanctity of laws, principles and tutelar institutions. An anarchical club, an insolent group, assembled tumultuously in San Roque, supplanted the Honorable Representation of the Province, and the mutineer soldier Juan Lavalle, followed by the rebellious soldiery, took possession of the seat of Government, by means of a crime to which the Legislature of all civilized people awards the punishment of death—

“Those are the principles, the order, the liberty, the guarantees, which the miscreant unitarians have ever offered; these the very principles which the miscreant usurper multiply unitarian Fructuoso Rivera professes in the Banda Oriental: these are the men of enlightened ideas and civilization.

“Then as now the Argentines and Orientals incapable of compounding with crime and treachery raised their voice against such barbarous deeds. Then as now the Argentine people indignant at this outrage swore not to lay down their arms until they had exemplarily chastised these barbarous and vile traitors. Then as now public opinion founded on justice and on the sentiment of American honours presented itself in the strife with heroic, immortal intrepidity.”

The Election for Members to the House of Representatives, to replace those who have gone out by rotation, took place on the 31th ult.—The following gentlemen were elected for this city.

Sciöres Roque Stenz Peña, Jacinto Cardenas, Bernardo Pereda, Lorenzo Torres, Romualdo Gaete, Miguel E. Siler, Agustín Pinedo, Lucio Manilla, Celestino Vidal, Francisco Prieyro, Norberto Dolz, Estupacio José Torres, and Pedro Lozano.

Mr. Gordon arrived in town on Thursday last from Paraguay—he was accompanied by Mr. Naylor. Mr. Barclay had returned to Corrientes and was about to proceed through that Province to the Oriental State.

CONFIRMATION.

The antiquity of this ceremony is, by all ancient writers, carried so high as the Apostles, and founded upon their example and practice. In the primitive church it used to be given to Christians immediately after baptism, if the bishop happened to be present at the solemnity. Among the Greeks, and throughout the East, it still accompanies baptism; but the Roman Catholics make it a distinct and independent sacrament. Seven years is the stated time for confirmation, although they are sometimes confirmed before, and sometimes after that age. The order of confirmation in the Church of England does not, however, determine the precise age of the persons to be confirmed.

Since the arrival of the Rev. Barton Lodge, the British Episcopal Church in this City has been open for divine service on the Holy-days wherein a Gospel is appointed to be read, according to the rubric of the Church of England.

That portion of the town towards the beach was decorated with flags on Monday last, in celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Quebracho.

The small pox is at present a prevailing disease in Buenos Ayres, and has, in many instances lately, proved fatal.

A murder was committed on Saturday night last, at half past 10, by a man from the country, who entered a linen-drapers' shop in the Calle de la Federación and stabbed the owner there; a boy who witnessed the affair gave an alarm and the murderer was secured by the watchman.

The following correspondence affords a gratifying evidence both of the noble exertions made by American seamen in the preservation of the lives of others and of the good feeling of the British Government.

Washington, August 16, 1842.

Sir—I herewith transmit to you, by direction of Her Majesty's Government, six gold medals bearing the portrait of Her Majesty, the Queen, which the British Government desire to present to the commanders of the United States vessels named in the accompanying list, in acknowledgement of the services rendered by them in saving the lives of British seamen, subjects of Her Majesty.

I have the honor to request that you will be pleased to cause them to be delivered to the respective commanders on the part of Her Majesty's Government.

I have the honor to be, sir, with high consideration, your most obedient and humble servant,

(Signed)

H. S. FOX:

The Hon. DANIEL WEBSTER, &c., &c., &c.

Mr. Webster answered the above on the 19th of the same month, as follows—

I shall have great pleasure in forwarding these testimonials to those for whom they are destined; and I assure you that the Government of the United States justly appreciates the honorable motives which have led the British Government to this manifestation of respect towards well-deserving citizens of the United States. The dangers and accidents of the sea naturally create a feeling of brotherhood among mariners of all nations, and great interests of humanity are connected with the cultivating and strengthening of this generous and noble feeling.

Be pleased to accept the assurance of my distinguished consideration.

(Signed) DANIEL WEBSTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BRITISH PACKET.

Sir,

On Wednesday afternoon 22nd ult., at 5 o'clock, I sent five of my boarders to the Church of San Miguel to attend the procession which was about to leave that church at half past five. As the procession was not ready when they arrived, two of the eldest (one 17 years of age and the other 13,) left the church, and proceeded to the river to bathe,—when they went into the river the boats were to be seen; but whilst they were in the water, the wind blowing fresh from the east, and the river flowing fast, the tocasas were soon covered, and the boys missing their way out, fell into some holes, and the youngest aged 13, was drowned. Two more boys were drowned on the same afternoon, at the same hour, and about the same place, which is opposite to the Alameda: one of them I am sorry to say was also a day scholar of mine; he had left my house to go to his own; but instead of going home, he went to the river, and unhappily met with the same fate. The other boy is not a scholar of mine, neither do I know whose son he is.

I have related to you the particulars of this melancholy event, so that you may, if you think proper, notice it in your British Packet, and by so doing, warn other youths from going to bathe, without the knowledge and consent of their friends.

The Captain of the Port Don Pedro Jimeno, saw the accident and rendered every aid, both in the effort to save the unfortunate youths and for the recovery of their bodies, which were afterwards found.

I am, dear Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

GEORGE CLARK.

November 25, 1842.

Prince Adolph of Prussia, visited the ships of war lying at Rio Janeiro on the 23d. October, and sailed on the 30th, on board the British steamer Growler, for Para, &c.

We received by H. D. M.'s packet Viper, London papers to 9th September;—they do not contain any news of importance, either European or Indian. The disturbances in the manufacturing districts in England had subsided, and the greater part of the operatives had returned to their labour. Several leading Chartists were arrested and committed for trial, charged with fomenting these riots.

The late summer in England was one of extraordinary heat—the thermometer in London was often ascending to 90 in the shade, and at one time stood at 92 (of Fahrenheit's) in fact, (says the Athenaeum) the heat of the weather has reached points which made even gossiping a labour." This appears to have been the case on the Continent as well as in England. "This glorious summer," continues the Athenaeum, has been "the winter of their discontent" to theatrical managers: even the lessee of the Haymarket, whose doors are open all the year to catch the wind of fortune, must have felt the season's influence on those flicks breezes. "Indeed, we question if it would not be more profitable in the end, for the actors to have a "long vacation" like the lawyers: after a little privation the players would return with a fresh appetite for it. It is, we wonder at the audience, who "leave the bright precincts of the theatre, day" for the sweltering heat of a theatre, and feel for the performers, to whom the very draughts across the stage must be stifling as the simoom.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

LORD ASHBURTON AT CAMBRIDGE.
The dinner of the Phi Beta Kappa Society on Thursday was one of the pleasantest of its pleasant social meetings.

The Treaty arrived in Boston on the very morning of the festival; this circumstance, the news of its perfect settlement and the presence of Lord Ashburton and other English gentlemen at the dinner, gave a direction to much of the wit and eloquence which characterized it. We have thought of an attempt to recall some of those tokens of the universal joy at the confirmation of peace would not be unpleasant at this moment, while the statements to whom England and America owe so much, is yet among us.

The President of the Society, Hon. Josiah Quincy, Jr., presided at the table. There appeared to be about three hundred of the brethren present.

The President gave as an opening toast: "The influence of classical study felt through all after life—the needle retains its polarity long after the lodestone is withdrawn."

The President again rose and in a graceful and eloquent manner remarked that one of the greatest glories of literature arose from the inducements it furnished and the rewards it gave to eminent public services. Poetry and history had for ages incited and immortalized the conquerors of nations; and as literature would still hold its sway, it was to be hoped that a better era was commencing; and that as "peace had her victories as well as war," future historians would perpetuate the fame of the benefactors of mankind.

He closed his speech by proposing: "The health of our distinguished guest—The nation's; his united shall join in his praise, and future generations shall call him blessed."

On the announcement of the toast the company rose and drank it with all the honors. When the cheering subsided,

Lord Ashburton returned thanks for the kind and enthusiastic manner in which his name had been received; the proudest moment of his life, and the one which he received the most distinguished institutions of the country, should exhibit tokens of such enthusiasm and gratification at the allusion to the negotiations which had just been brought to a close. He could not refrain at the same time, from expressing his warm thanks towards those with whom he had been engaged in the conduct of that negotiation, and in general for the kind feeling which in this country had answered to that felt towards this country by the government of England.

Then followed a rapid succession of sentiments from the chair, which called up successively, and elicited speeches and sentiments from President Quincy, Lord John Hay, Mr. Justice Story, W. B. Reed, Esq. (orator of the day), Mr. Grotton, Mr. Bancroft, Rev. Dr. Bethune, and Mr. Peter, British Consul at Philadelphia, and a host of others.

Lord John Hay made a brief acknowledgment, when called on by a sentiment to this effect:

"The Commander of the Warspite—He bears the Herald of Peace in the Spite of War."

He said that the order to convey his distinguished friend on his mission, was the most gratifying order that he had ever received, and he was happy that he should have the pleasure to convey him home now that mission had come to a termination, which would be as gladly received in England as in America.

The President closed a few appropriate remarks with the following, which was received with great enthusiasm:

"The Treaty of Washington—It was well for America that a Daniel had come to judgment."

The following allusion to the christian name of Lord Ashburton was received with great applause:

"True greatness—Which shall the christian historian place first: the ALEXANDER who severed nations by the sword—or the ALEXANDER who united them by peaceful negotiation?"

Mr. Hill, at the close of some eloquent and graceful remarks, gave:

"England and America—May the peace between them be as firm as the cliffs of their coast, and every element of their estrangement be as evanescent as the bubbles that break on their shores."

The following communication appeared in the "Times" of 7th September.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir,—Some ill-natured remarks having been made about the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, on account of his being in bed, and having overlaid himself, on the morning of the Queen's landing, I beg to assure you that no more loyal subject exists, and that the circumstance was entirely owing to his Lordship's constitutional absence of mind.

The following family anecdote will prove my assertion—

When his Lordship's lady was about to be confined, her accouchement was expected about 7 o'clock in the evening, and his Lordship showed every conjugal and even uxorious care that all attendance should be ready at that time; but as the event did not take place at the expected time, and no symptoms of any probable distress occurring immediately, his Lordship went to his own bed in a separate room, and slept till about 11 o'clock next morning, being his usual hour of rising.

On coming down to his breakfast, the nurse (who had vainly tried to wake him in his bed-room) wished him a joy of a son and her, but, to her utter astonishment, he was violently angry, and asked, in tones of great displeasure, "Why could not your mistress wait till I had got up and had my breakfast?"

Many of your Edinburgh friends can vouch for the correctness of this anecdote: and as it shows with such incontrovertible proof the absence of mind his Lordship is subject to, I am sure you will agree with me that his recent late nap, and subsequent dissatisfaction at not having been waited for by his Royal mistress, arose solely and entirely from his constitutional peculiarity, and not from any want of loyalty.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

Edinburgh.

THEATRES.

We have not visited the Theatres lately, but report says they continue to be well attended, particularly the performances of the foreign gymnastic company at the Argentine Theatre.

The arrival of the British iron built schooner Scott on Thursday, from Liverpool, excited a good deal of curiosity in town, she being here before, the first vessel of the sort which has ever crossed the line, and although but 40 tons register, she can carry 100 dead weight. At present she draws 44 feet water, which can be reduced to little more than 3, by taking away her false keel. The Captain came up the river and to the inner roads without a pilot, and anchored his little craft at once off the mole.

Birth.

On the 19th ult., Mrs. William Nowell, of a son.

Died.

On the 8th ult., at Quilmes, aged 15 years, Juan Thomas, son of the late Mr. John Yates, formerly resident at that place. His remains were conveyed to the British Protestant Cemetery on the 9th.

On the 26th, aged 15 months, of the small pox, EMILY, daughter of Captain John King, of the Argentine Navy.

On the 30th, aged 24 years, of the same disease, DON FLORENCIO ESCARDO.
