BUENOS AYRES, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5th, 1844.

[Established in 1826

BUENOS AYRES.

The drama of the Rio de la Plata presents this week another of those disgraceful episodes in which it has been so prolific through the reckless or petulant conduct of neutral naval commanders. Happily, on this occasion, it is no British officer who has been treading in the fatal footsteps of Commodore Purvis—it is, oh fie, an officer in the service of the eldest sister republic of the American Continent, who wishes to eclipse the unenviable glory of a Duncan and a Jones.

We could give very ample though not minute details respecting this new outrage against the Argentine squadron off Montevideo, in which Capt Voorhees of the U. S. ship Congress, has been the chief actor; but as the transaction is of such a disreputable and serious nature, we think we use a proper discretion in refraining from any further notice of it till we are in full possession of the particulars. When that period arrives, it is not to be expected that we, who have shewn no mercy to our own delinquent fellow-countrymen, will shrink from performing our duty to the public.

The quarrel between the Riverista Cavalry Commander and the Minister of Finance in Montevideo, has, we know not through the mediation of what kind friend, been satisfactorily settled, both parties, like Peacham and Lockit in the Beggar's Opera, shaking hands and exclaiming, 'Brother, brother, we are both in the wrong.'—Lamas in not having given to Flores a sufficient share of the spoils, and the latter in being over hasty in threatening to stab the ungrateful "monster" to the heart. Now that the gallant Colonel's personal wants have been satisfied, not another word is said about the sufferings of the 'people.' On the contrary, new exactions are announced as the result of the arrangement entered into between the two worthies.

This evening there will be a grand funcion at the Victoria Theatre, in celebration of the 5th October, 1820, when General Rosas entered this Capital at the head of his regiment of cavalry and restored the legal authority. The performances advertised are the drama of "Masaniello"—a dance under the direction of the professor of dancing, Geronimo Martinez, who will take part therein—a duet by Señor Lucci, and his daughter Carmen—"Bolerias" by Señora Guillerma and her brother Henrique, and a farce. The National Anthem will be sung, and the proceeds of the evening will be given in aid of the war.

We would call the attention of our literary friends in Buenos Ayres, to the advertisement in our paper of this day for the sale of books by Messrs. Ibarra & Macome. Amongst the works therein advertised to be peremptorily sold, are a series of the Penny Magazine and Penny Cyclopaedia, which, although not complete, may, we presume, be rendered so by sending to the publishers in London. The latter work has been successfully brought to a conclusion, and has obtained the approbation of all scientific men. The former yet goes on and increases every day in interest, and we can furnish the purchasers of the series with two numbers monthly as they come out. The merits of the other publications are well known—the whole will be open for inspection until the time of sale.

Paris, July 27th,

At length we have the French journals contented with the English parliament, the English press, and the English people. They are all satisfied with the debate upon Mr. Sheil's motion. They all applaud the wise and generous and elevated moderation of Sir Robert Peel, unmarred by the hitherto snappish rancour of the opposition. Precious time may be wasted by motions that lead to nothing, but, happily, no futile purpose can prevent the speeches of Sir R. Peel from taking the position and form of acts. The premier's speech is an act of state—one that has done more than could the best-conceited treaty for reuniting France and Great Britain in feelings of reciprocal regard. I do not recollect to have seen at any time a debate of the British parliament given at such length in the Paris journals as the one to which I now refer, a conclusive proof of its flattering character to French feeling. The Standard has treated Mr. Sheil as an organ of the parti pretre, and the France, a parti pretre journal, warrants the charge, by printing in conspicuous Roman characters the most mischievously designed passage it could extract from Mr. Sheil's oration. Thus the parti pretre alone is unassuageable. Even the Republican responds to the high courtesy and manly cordiality of English statesmen. The priests are inexorable. The British press, too, divides with parliament the acknowledgments of the French people; extracts from the Times and Herald, commenting upon the late discussion, appear in many journals; while the leading article of the latter, as it appeared in Wednesday's number, is honoured by the Journal des Debats with a translation in full. Speaking of the last named journal, I ought not to fail to remark that it reiterates the solemn expression of the French foreign minister's declaration against all intention of occupying any part of Morocco—reserving, however, the right of forcing the Emperor into compliance with the terms already dictated."

The Duke of Bordeaux.—We read in the Constitutionnel: "Some copies of the declaration transmitted to the foreign powers by the Duke de Bordeaux, on the death of the Duke d'Angouleme, have reached Paris. He declares that, being by the death of his uncle called upon to assume the rights of the elder branch of the Bourbons to the throne of France, he thinks it his duty to protest against what took place in 1830, contrary to the order of succession to the throne, such as it was regulated by the constitution of the country and the ancient rights of the monarchy. However, his intention, he says, is not at present to claim these rights; and for the present he contents himself with making his new position known, and with announcing that, in his relations with the various governments, he should take the title of Count de Chambord."

The Paris papers of Friday and Saturday, with our usual private correspondence, have reached us. The former contain the details of Marshal Bugeaud's last affair with the Moors, and, sooth to say, they do not bear out the very flourishing telegraphic despatches which preceded them. The chief and almost only result of eight days' hard campaigning has been to obtain provisions and water. All he seems likely to do at present is, to hold good his post until fresh reinforcements shall be sent him. The government is busily engaged in despatching both cavalry and infantry to his aid. The grand difficulty would appear to be to subsist them when they reach him. The ultimatum of the Emperor is expected daily. The debate in the British House of Commons, on Mr. Sheil's motion, appears to have afforded great satisfaction in Paris. The journalists of all parties appear to regard the question of Algeria as finally settled by that discussion, and even talk of compelling British consults to take out fresh exequaturs. The Tory Ministry, says the Journal des Debats, has this one advantage over the old Whig ministry, it has not only the courage to abide by its own acts, but the generosity to take upon itself the responsibility of those of its adversaries. If then, adds the Debats, anything is established by this dispute, it is that from 1830 to 1841, the English Government raised no objection to the occupation of Algiers by the French.

The supplement to the Journal of the Two Sicilies of the 13th contains the sentences passed by a military commission on 76 persons, who were parties to the movement at Cozenza in March last. The majority of them have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment, coupled with hard labour, for terms varying from 12 to 25 years. Twenty-one have been condemned, of whom six have since been executed. The commission is now engaged in trying the prisoners captured on the coast of Calabria. The two sons of Admiral Bandiera had not been captured.

MR. TENKER, Surgeon Dentist of the cities of New York, Rio de Janeiro & Montevideo, and unanimously received by the Hon. Tribunal of Medicine of this Capital as Pro-fessor of said Art, has fixed his residence for a number of years in Buenos Ayres, and continues to practice his pro-fession and can be consulted at all hours at his house.
 He fills decayed teeth with pure gold, silver or mineral cement without pain, even the largest cavities and renders them useful for life. He evens, cleans, separates and ex-tracts teeth by a new method, causing less pain; also inserts without pain the mineral incorruptible teeth that never decay like those taken from dead bodies. The following prepara-tions for the teeth, which he has been several years in per-fecting, can always be had with directions at his rooms.—
EL AGUA DE LAS PAMPAS (PAMPA WATER) distilled from herbs and roots, is a powerful stimulant to the secretions of the mouth, removing every thing of a greasy nature, the bad effects of decayed teeth, medicine, tobacco, segars and a feverish state of the mouth in the morning; it also preserves the teeth, hardens the gums when they are white and spongy, and leaves a delicious flavour in the mouth.
EL BALSAMO DE LOS ANDES, of Chemical Water, which loosens the tartar that forms upon the teeth causing the gums to be inflamed, loosening the teeth so that they often fall out— a general complaint in this country; it is a powerful astrin-gent to gums, and makes the teeth firmer in their sockets.
FIRE KING'S REMEDY FOR THE TOOTH ACHES is wonderful in its effects as thousands can testify, and the secret is known by him alone in S. A.
TOOTH POWDERS, which cleans and preserves the teeth and gives the gums a very healthy colour, is too well known in Buenos Ayres to need recommendation here. He invites the curious to call and examine his instruments.

To be disposed of by Private Contract, WITH THE GOOD WILL &c.

THE Old Established Saddlery and Harness Manufactory of the late John Kennedy, situated in the "Calle de la Piedad," No. 14, with the entire stock on hand, consisting of ladies' and gentlemen's saddles, many of which are of the very best class and lately imported from England, gig and cart harness in sets complete, ladies' and gentlemen's riding whips, cart whips and coach whips; also a full assortment of spurs, stirrup irons, stirrup leathers, girths, saddle cloths, saddle trees, leather traveling trunks, sword belts, bridle bits, chain traces, &c. &c. together with the working tools, glass cases and fixtures, as well as a very superior stock of every article in the trade necessary for the person entering the premises to commence an active business immediately.
 Any person wishing to embrace this opportunity can apply on the premises to view the stock and treat with the propri-eter of the same, who is about to retire from the business Buenos Ayres, Sept 6th 1844.

ARGENTINE THEATRE.

A brilliant audience collected at this theatre on Saturday evening last—the three act comedy of "El marido de mi mujer" was represented; but the chief attractions were the lyrical performances, which consisted of a duet from the opera of Belisario, sung by Señores Rafael Lucci and José Gandolfo; a modinia by the Señorita Manuela Cayotana Lucci; a duet from the Gazza Ladra, by Señor Lucci and his daughter Carmen, and the duet "Ah i capricci de la Sorte, from the Italiana, by the same. These operatic efforts went off very respectably. Señor Gandolfo is new to this stage and has a pleasing tenor voice. The really excellent style in which the orchestra accompanied the vocalists (especially in the music of the Gazza Ladra) made one regret that a full opera cannot be got up.

VICTORIA THEATRE.

The dramatic representations on these boards are pretty well attended.

CIRCUS—RETRO GARDENS.

The performances attract, we hear, tolerable au-diences, which will improve as the spring advances.

SPAIN.

On the 10th instant, Don F. Lagunas, formerly commander of the National Guards, and two other citizens of Saragossa, were shot in one of the public squares. They were said to have been implicated in the death of General Esteller during a popular tumult in 1838, and were tried and condemned by a military tribunal.

Another savage murder has just been committed, by order of Narvaez, the military dictator. It appears that three Carlists and two smugglers were arrested in the month of June, at Caspe, a town in Arragon, and their trial before the Criminal Court of the district was fixed for the 8th inst. The trial had commenced, the evidence for the prosecution was closed, and the counsel for the defendants were allowed till the 12th to prepare the defence. But superior orders put an end to the trial. An officer, commanding a detachment of twenty infantry and nine cavalry, arrived from Alcaniz, at Caspe, on the eve- ning of the 8th. Next day the three unhappy Carlists were removed from their dungeons and enjoined to con-fess, and at twelve o'clock they were shot. The Judge opposed, by every legal means, so flagrant an injustice; but what can the tribunals do in presence of bayonets! One of the three sufferers, Pajares, died without confession, and Christian burial was denied to his remains.

Accounts from Madrid of the 16th announce that these atrocious butcheries had excited the greatest public indignation, which might ultimately cause the downfall of the despotic and cruel Ministry. Even some of the Government journals condemn these un-justifiable acts of cruelty.

FRANCE AND MOROCCO.

A despatch from Marshal Bugeaud, dated the 3d instant, gives an account of another skirmish between the French and Moors of the frontiers of Mo-rocco. It would appear, from the Marshal's account, that while encamped on the banks of a river called Oued-Isly, for the purpose of protecting a tribe who had announced their submission, the Moorish chief, on ascertaining this fact, informed the French that he would resist their approach to the Moorish camp and confine them to the mountains. The Moors es-tablished themselves in considerable force within cannon shot of the French. Bugeaud, in order to avoid a contest, retreated, and the enemy fired on his rear-guard. Upon this he acted on the offensive, and totally dispersed the Moorish force, which consisted entirely of cavalry, and amounted to about 4000 men, 3000 of whom were regular troops. Abd-el-Kader was present. The French had only six men wounded, and the Moors also suffered very little.

Despatches were received by the French Govern-ment on Sunday from Marshal Bugeaud, dated Lella Magnia, the 6th of July. These despatches do not contain any news, with the exception of a great ra-ziah executed by General Tempourri's column upon the Ouled Belagh, the Ouled-el-Mahr, the Beni Mu-thar, and the Ouled-Sidi-Iahia fraction of the Djafra. These tribes were come up to at fifteen leagues to the south of Seboud, and made a stubborn resistance. They had thirty of their horsemen killed, 100 pris-oners taken, with 20,000 sheep, 600 oxen 150 ca-mels, besides many horses and mules.

THE COMET.

An inquiry is made in the London Times newspa-per of this day, concerning the place of the comet, first observed by M. Mauvais, at Paris, in the early part of the present month, the latest observation of which the public is at present in possession, being that of Sir James South, at the Kensington Observa-tory, on July 15, when its R. A. was 15 h. 49 min., and its N. D. 42 deg. 38 min. 40 sec., near to the star Cui, of the constellation Hercules, forming, with it and two other obscure stars, a small distorted lo-zenge. In the Parisian journal, the Gazette de France, the following particulars have been given, as the parabolic elements of the comet's orbit, but there is reason to think that they are given erroneously, through typographical error:—

Perihelion—October 24, 14 h. 46 min. 5 sec. (This, probably, is a typographical error and should be September 24.) Perihelion distance, 0.76, of the radius of the earth's orbit, or 72 millions of miles from the sun. Longitude of the perihelion, 17 deg. 35 min. 42 sec. Longitude of ascending node, 38 deg. 37 min. 42 sec., (but this must be a typographical error; it should be the descending node.) Inclina-tion, 49 deg. 41 min. 23 sec.

The direction of the comet's motion is not given, which, however, is direct, and the remark which is added, that the comet will pass through the plane of the ecliptic on September 24, is most likely another typographical error for October 24.

The true epocha for the perihelion passage, in all probability is September 24, at 14 h. 46 min. 58 sec. of mean time at Paris; and the true time of the com-et passing through the plane of the ecliptic will then be October 24.

If the descending node have 38 deg. 37 min. 42 sec. for its longitude, the earth and the comet will then be distant from each other about 15 millions of miles, or the same distance as Halley's comet in its nearest approach to the earth in the year 1835. The nearest approach of the present comet to the earth will be in the first week of November, when it may be expected to be very conspicuous to those liv-ing south of the equator.

Taking these corrected elements for granted, the apparent course of the comet will be from the wes-tern leg of the constellation Hercules, sweeping be-tween the constellations Bootes and Ursa Major, to Cor Caroli and Coma Berenices, where it will make its perihelion turn, and from thence passing the star Vindemiator, will fall down to Spica, there passing through the plane of the ecliptic.

There has been some alarm at Paris, where the people, to be sure, are very wicked, at the expected nearness of the comet to the earth. The two, if the published elements be at all near the truth, will certainly be in close neighbourhood towards the end of October and the beginning of November, perhaps not more than seven millions of miles distant, an interval which a cometic tail of decent length would readily fill; but by that time the line joining the sun and the comet, which is usually that of the direction of a comet's tail, will be wide of the direction of the line which will join the earth and the sun, so that there is fair ground to hope that no particular harm will ensue. It will not be amiss, nevertheless, considering how matters go, for every one even here to be prepared for the worst, lest there should be some small error in the calculation, or the tail have unfortunately taken an anomalous twist.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

Liverpool 24th July, 1844.

From a late Boston Paper.

THE POLKA DANCE. This dance is quite the rage on the continent not only with the corps de ballet of the theatres, but with the fashionable figurantes of the private assemblies, who, stripping it of its most prominent and romantic evolutions, vie with each other in giving the best articulation to its graceful performance. A former Boston belle, now the cynosure of the elite Parisian reunions is said to be perfect in the art of dancing the Polka, and executes it with her husband to the admiration of all beholders, who perhaps scarcely thought to see an American lady so quickly identify herself with all foreign customs—so willing to educate herself anew—not in the domestic duties of a wife, but in the trivial fashions of the French metropolis. An article in the "World of Fashion" has a few "touches" upon the Polka mania which seems to have become contagious, and to have excited a "deep and thrilling interest" with one portion of the world's enthusiasts, as foreign missions have with another—or, as the playing of OLE BULL, or OLE BULL HIMSELF has with yet another division of the world's people! "Who is there in the possession of his senses," asks the writer in the "London World," "that has not by this time heard of the Polka?" The old talk of it, the young and middle aged learn it, and all but the crippled or the blind endeavour to dance it. From Almack's to the humble dancing booth in England, the Polka is attempted, whilst men forget their usual occupations to descant upon its merits; and the ladies abandon all things, even the latest fashions, to praise and to admire it.

The Polka has spread like a contagion from the depths of Poland to St. Petersburg, and from St. Petersburg to Vienna, and from Vienna to Paris and from Paris to London, and no doubt it is by this time tripping over the Great Atlantic, and setting in commotion the damsels of New York. Music composers are making fortunes of tunes for the Polka. Dancing-masters and mistresses are vesting large sums in the funds, because they must teach the Polka, and be well paid for their lessons in the art. Even in the past month, when a meeting was held for the purpose of providing an asylum for the aged teachers of dancing in this metropolis, and when all belonging to the profession were laudably anxious to promote so good and so benevolent an object, it was yet found that the meeting was but thinly attended, because the most celebrated professors of the art were compelled to absent themselves; for each and all the excuse was the same—"They were giving lessons in the Polka!"

A work has been published on the momentous subject of the Polka, bearing the imposing title "Physiologie de la Polka d'apres Cellarius, par Auguste Vitu et Paul Farnese," in which due commendation is bestowed upon this dance, and the art of dancing, itself, is elevated to the proper degree of importance.

The following is an extract from the pages of what our readers will understand to be but a playful brochure:

The Polka can alone be danced by people who have two feet. The great use of the feet is to dance the Polka.

Country dances suit those of a sanguine temperament. The waltz is for the lymphatic. The Polka for the bilious.

No lady ought to dance the Polka if she have passed her thirtieth year. After thirty, the Polka only inspires ferocious ideas.

Do you wish to espouse that young person, who seated at the lower end of the ball room, scarcely dares to raise her eyes to you, to supplicate you not to forget her—then insist upon her mamma dancing with you the Polka. If you wish to please the mamma, make the daughter Polka with you.

A fashionable ball without the Polka, is a dinner without soup, a coat without sleeves, or an eye without the eye-brow.

Tell me how you dance the Polka, and I can tell you what you are.

The only great men who ever existed, who, if they had the opportunity, could not dance the Polka, were Tamerlane, Lord Byron and Talleyrand, and this, because they were lame.

GUANO.

From a Liverpool Paper of 29th July.

Dr. Buckland on Guano.—At the Southampton meeting, on Wednesday, Dr. Buckland said, great additional facilities to cultivation were now afforded by the use of guano, though some disappointment had been felt in its working. The dry season had proved unfavorable to experiments in guano, and he entreated those who might have tried it to wait till next year. There were now 600 vessels in that trade, and you would get it cheaper now than ever. But he would recommend them never to use guano in dry weather. They should also be aware of adulteration. He would remind them also, that as the volatility of the elements of guano constituted its efficacy, they must not expect it to last as a manure for more than one year.

Prospects of the Guano Trade.—As guano is likely to come into general use as an available and profitable manure, an idea may be formed of the quantity ultimately required. There are, for instance, in England and Wales, 25,000,000 acres of land under cultivation, and almost 16,000,000 in Ireland and Scotland. Supposing, however, that guano be applied, ultimately, to only one twelfth of this quantity, what a trade would thus be created! Taking it for granted that an acre will require about two hundred weight and a half, 600,000 tons annually would be required; while the import of this quantity would employ some 1200 vessels, of 500 tons burthen each!

Guano Sales.—On Friday two cargoes of guano, from Ichaboe, were offered for sale, at the room, in Oldhall street. The first cargo of 900 tons, by the Bradshaw, was divided into lots of five and ten tons each. For the first lot, consisting of five tons, the first offer was £4 per ton; the next was £5; after which it rose, by half crowns, to five guineas, at which the biddings ceased. In the course of the bids, it was stated, that the owners were quite prepared to store this cargo, and, if they did, it certainly would not be sold at that price, they were anxious to meet buyers fairly, but not to sacrifice. The whole cargo was then withdrawn at £5.10s. per ton. The next cargo was one of 250 tons, offered by Mr. J. H. Rayner, broker, in a vessel just arrived, which, it was stated, would convey it to any safe port which the purchaser might select. It was offered in one lot. The biddings commenced at £4, advanced to £5, where they stopped, and, as in the other case, the cargo was withdrawn at £5.10s.

STOCK EXCHANGE.

London 28th July.

In the Foreign Market there has not been much movement generally. Mexican Stock has continued to attract attention; and an improvement of 4 per cent. occurred on Tuesday, as there are sanguine expectations that the dividend due in April last will soon be paid; it has since, however, gradually declined 1 1/2 per cent. Buenos Ayres has also been in favour, in consequence of a letter addressed by Messrs. Baring to the Committee of the Stock Exchange, enclosing a copy of one from their agent at Buenos Ayres, dated 21st May, and a copy of a decree of the House of Representatives, confirming the arrangement previously entered into with the Executive, by which the sum of 5,000 hard dollars per month will be paid over for the benefit of the bondholders, until some final arrangement can be made for permanently providing for the Public Debt. This was announced some weeks ago, but is now confirmed; and this statement was the means of raising the value of the Stock on the market 1 1/2 per cent.

Dublin, July 26. Lord Heytesbury was duly installed as Viceroy of Ireland yesterday, under such circumstances as were calculated to make a pleasing effect upon him. Nothing could be more flattering (all circumstances considered) than the reception which the noble lord met with, not only from the large and fashionable assembly at Kingstown, but from all classes in Dublin. The arrangements at the Castle and in Dublin were made to suit the arrival of his Excellency at 11 o'clock; but the Merlin steamer having made a very speedy passage, touched at the mouth of the harbour at seven o'clock yesterday morning. His Excellency not wishing to anticipate the stated time, enjoyed a cruise of more than three hours about the bay, touching at the embouchure of the Liffey, at Sutton, Howth, Killiney, Dalkey, and Bray; and the morning being beautifully fine, the prospects presented were strikingly attractive.

(To the Editor of the British Packet.)

SIR,

May I beg through the medium of your paper to return my most grateful thanks to the officers and crew of the United States Ship 'Boston,' for the kind assistance they rendered to the brigantine under my command, by regaining and putting on board the anchor and chain from which she had parted during a strong wind in the outer roads of this port.

M. MATSSON.

Master of the Swedish brigantine 'Solide.'

Buenos Ayres 2nd October, 1844.

DIED.

ON the 1st inst. after a painful and lingering illness, aged 61 years, Mr. Thomas Smith, bricklayer, after a residence in Buenos Ayres of nearly 20 years. His funeral took place at the British Protestant Cemetery on the 2nd, and was most numerously attended, the coffin being borne from the entrance of the Cemetery to the grave by six British master bricklayers. The deceased was considered to be one of the best practical workmen as a bricklayer that ever came to this country.

On the 3rd, aged 74, after many years residence in this country, Mr. Anthony Burford, upholsterer, native of North Yarmouth, England.

On the 8th ult. on board of the brig Elizabeth of Yarmouth, of Montevideo, Mrs. Susannah Newson, wife of Capt. William Newson of that vessel, and,

On the 24th ult. in Montevideo, Captain William Newson.

Their remains were interred in the British Protestant Cemetery of that city.

THE WEATHER this week has been seasonable, with the usual strong winds from the eastward every evening.
