THE ARMED INTERVENTION BUBBLE BURST!

BRITISH INTERVENTION IN LA PLATA.

We have learnt, from authority, that very considerable changes have been made as to the manner in which the proposed intervention in the affairs of Buenos Ayres and Montevideo will take place. On the 6th of February Sir Robert Peel, it may be recollected, spoke in the House of Commons of combined operations by England and France, "and, as he expected, by Brazil," to put an end to the interruption of the navigation of La Plata; and instructions were, it is known, given to Mr. Gore Ouseley, our newly appointed Chargé d'Affaires at Buenos Ayres, in that sense, previously to his departure from town in the course of last week. At a Cabinet Council held subsequently, on Monday, the 20th of February, it was, however, resolved by her Majesty's Ministers that the proposed intervention should be made, so far as this country is concerned, singly and without concert either with France or Brazil; thus leaving England free from the embarrassments which combined interference was not unlikely to beget. It was likewise resolved that the intervention should be of an entire pacific and friendly character; and that as a proof thereof to Rosas, Commodore Purvis, who came into collision with that chief when he broke the Buenos Ayrean blockade of Montevideo, should be recalled from Rio de Janeiro, so that he might not under any circumstances re-enter La Plata. These resolutions were, we have reason to know, embodied in fresh instructions for Mr. Gore Ouseley, and only overlooked him as he was about to embark for Buenos Ayres.—From the Atlas of May 1.

The Atlas publishes this evening, "from authority," some important information respecting the affairs of the River Plate, since it leaves no doubt of a peaceful and satisfactory termination of the difficulties existing in that part of the world being effected within a few months, assuming that before the expiration of this period Montevideo does not fall into the hands of Oribe and the besieging forces. It is stated that after Mr. Gore Ouseley, the newly-appointed Envoy to Buenos Ayres, had taken his departure from town for Plymouth, to embark on board the Firebrand steamer for his destination, a Cabinet Council was held at the Foreign office, at which a different course of policy from that intended in the first instance was resolved upon. Instead of joining with France and Brazil in measures of coercion, and an armed intervention between Buenos Ayres and Montevideo, it was resolved that compulsory action should be abandoned altogether, and that this country should, without concert or junction with the two other powers, mediate amicably on her own account solely between the contending states of La Plata, without, in case of failure, or refusal of her good offices, the contemplation of ulterior proceedings of an unfriendly description. Commodore Purvis, moreover, whose presence it was known was obnoxious in this quarter, is to be recalled from Rio Janeiro as before from the River Plate, so as to take him from the station altogether. We understand, besides, that the Commodore is to be replaced by Captain Corry.

Merchants in the City connected with these parts are taken agreeably by surprise by the proposed changes in the policy of our Government, as they were well convinced that armed intervention and hostile demonstrations against Buenos Ayres could only end in creating a greater confusion of affairs in the River Plate than has ever existed there.

By the advices from Montevideo and Buenos Ayres, inserted in the Morning Post to-day, as well as those immediately preceding, given some days since, it will have been seen that the statements of the revolutionary confusion in the Government of Montevideo are fully confirmed, and that the self-elected rulers were fighting among themselves for the scanty spoils which remained to be shared, and the brief remnant of power there was to hope for. The contradiction given to these statements in our duplicate daily papers, on the pretended authority of certain Montevideo letters, but which, if real, must have been fraudulently concocted for the purpose, will now be appreciated as it deserves. Like fabrications are not unusual in the prints referred to, but are, on the contrary, rather the rule than the exception.—Morning Post of May 3.

Nothing more consistent with justice and sound policy than these resolves of the British Cabinet. Any other course would have been in the highest degree disastrous not only to British, but to all foreign interests in these countries. Applauding, however, as we do applaud, this wise determination, we cannot but regret that the removal of Commodore Purvis is accomplished only at the eleventh hour. Still, better late than never, and if, with his departure, also disappears all unwarrantable interference with the exercise of the belligerent rights of this Republic, we dare prognosticate the speedy restoration of peace on solid bases, such as are required for the development of the resources, and the promotion of the prosperity, of these highly favoured countries.

Commodore Purvis's successor is Rear-Admiral S. H. Inglefield. He has hoisted his flag on board the Eagle frigate, Captain G. B. Martin, and is supposed to have arrived by this time at Rio Janeiro.

THE DELUSION DISPELLED!

The Rio Janeiro Jornal do Commercio overthrows all the sophistry of its worthy compeers in Montevideo with respect to the victory of India Muerta, in the following article, which appeared in its number of the 20th ult. :—

"By advices received yesterday from Rio Grande down to the 10th inst., it appears that General Rivera, after the defeat of India Muerta, took refuge with the remnants of his forces in the Brazilian territory; and that Argentine troops under the command of Urquiza, and following in his pursuit, invaded the Province of Rio Grande, entering by Santa Theresa.

"It is added that the Baron de Jaculy, as soon as he learnt that the Imperial territory had been invaded, crossed the San Gonzalo with the force under his command, and placed himself between the victors and the vanquished; but it is affirmed that the Argentine division had not yet evacuated the Province.

"It is moreover said that Count Caxias, on his march for Port Alegre, received intelligence of this event, and immediately returned to the campaign."

The Jornal expresses the hope that that part of the intelligence relative to the alleged invasion will not prove true. For our parts we should regret, that, having such perfidious neighbours to deal with, if the Argentine and Oriental forces did actually pass the lines, they did not advance and effectually prevent the possibility of the recurrence of those flagitious breaches of neutrality which have already so much compromised the good faith of the Brazilian Government.

Thursday last, "Ascension Day," was kept as a close holiday in Buenos Ayres.

It was also Le jour de St. Philippe, Fete du Roi des Francais, and in honor thereof the battery saluted with 21 guns at 1 P.M.

Mr. Gore Ouseley, H. B. M.'s Minister Plenipotentiary to this Republic, lady and family, landed on Tuesday afternoon last, from the "Firebrand" steamer, and were received at the landing place by H. M.'s Consul, and the Captain of the Port and his Adjutant. Four of H. M.'s boats were in attendance upon the occasion—that which conveyed H. E. having the union jack at her bow.

The beach was thronged with visitors to witness the disembarkation.

Mr. Ball, Secretary of Legation, went on board the Firebrand in the morning, and accompanied Mr. Ouseley to shore.

H. B. M.'s brig Racer saluted the town on Tuesday last with 21 guns, for the "Firebrand" steamer, which was returned from the battery by a like number.

The "Frolick" also saluted on Mr. Ouseley's leaving the steamer.

The American ship Hamilton, which sailed hence on Monday last, for Boston, took (besides hides and horns) 1178 bales, being the greatest number ever known in any single vessel from this port. Of these bales 1172 were of wool, containing nearly 33,000 arrobas.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

By a letter from a respectable individual at Santa Fe, soliciting in the most urgent manner a supply of vaccine matter. It appears that the small pox has made its appearance in that Province. The Director of the vaccine establishments of this city feels the most lively grief at this event, the more so as it is his decided opinion that it is from lamentable apathy alone that this dreadful scourge has been allowed to spread its ravages here, causing desolation and mourning to families which might have been avoided. There is yet, however, time to ward off in some degree the peril which threatens us, and the Director trusts that parents will not disregard the danger to which their offspring are exposed, by neglecting to have them vaccinated.

SATURNO PINEDA.

Buenos Ayres, April 4, 1845.

The "Age" of 1st February in speaking of the debates in the French Chambers on the address says:—

We have allowed the French debaters, if they deserve that name, to crawl and sputter along without much notice, because, to tell the truth, we have rather a low opinion of the oratory of the French Chambers, and of the motives of most of the French orators. Prepared harangues, preached from the tribune, are too pedantic in their air to have much influence, unless one believes the speaker to be so thoroughly serious that he will not risk damaging his cause by the possible errors of an impromptu address. This, however, is not the case with the present race of French debaters—they enunciate their concocted speeches with some theatrical propriety of declamation, but their selfish objects are too obvious to entitle their oratory to any respect. At this moment the wildest member of the French Opposition contends for nothing but office—he has no principles to fight for, and is not ashamed to pour out inventives against the Ministry for advocating and adopting the very course which he and his party admit they must take were they instantly summoned by the King. The struggle is therefore a mere scramble, and as such is almost beneath notice. In truth, France can act only as she is acting, and the Chambers are a kind of safety-valve, which allows harmless escape to the fervid passions of Frenchmen who are frantic with rage at being obliged to do what they ought to do.

It is, however, satisfactory to know that the War-party, as it is called (though really as much afraid of war as its opponents are), has been baffled and beaten in all its machinations to overthrow a Cabinet which, as it adheres to a great extent to a policy similar to that of our own Ministers, is rational and patriotic. Little M. Thiers, than whom a greater humbug does not exist, has been utterly floored by the Soult-Guizot Ministry, at the moment when he thought he had succeeded in damaging it. The Ministry obtained a large majority upon the address, and when subsequently upon the same subject that majority was reduced, Thiers had the impudence to declare that the Ministry was no more, and "advised his friends to abstain from further discussion." But M. Guizot has taken a leaf out of the book of Wellington, and does not know when he is beaten—so he smiled, and took another division, on which, thanks to M. Thiers' marvellous stratagem, the Ministerial majority swelled enormously. So Thiers and his friends ran about Paris for a couple of days, swearing that the world was coming to an end. Clearly the Ministry was not—and in order to dispel any doubts upon that subject, a deputation which waited upon Marshal Soult to know the exact truth, was assured that neither he nor his colleagues would resign (ne desserteraient pas.)

And the address, as carried, was presented to the King on Wednesday evening at half-past eight o'clock, and the King received it most graciously; and in the second paragraph of his reply, expressed his exultation at the "happy and honourable agreement between England and France." It is now supposed, in the best informed political circles, that M. Thiers, in the excess of his wrath, having loaded his pockets with lead, or, as the nearest substitute for that metal, with a couple of volumes of his "History of the Empire," has pitched himself into the Seine. But this wants confirmation, and, except that M. Thiers has always displayed "great alacrity in sinking," we should be indisposed to think the little superficial creature could ever get to the bottom of anything.

THE QUESTION SETTLED—ANNEXATION RESOLUTION PASSED
 The Southern Mail last evening brought us the exciting intelligence that the Texas resolution had passed by a vote of 27 to 25, a majority of two.
 Mr. Bagby, of Alabama, voted in favor of the resolution and Mr. Foster, of Tennessee, voted against it. Both of the Senators from Ohio voted for it. The Amendment of Mr. Walker, makes the resolution substantially Mr. Brenton's last proposition. It must now go to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

WASHINGTON.
 (Correspondence of the Herald.)
 Washington, D. C. Feb. 27, 1845, half-past 9, P.M.

Editor Herald—
 The Texas resolution reported to the House, as amended by Mr. Walker, of Miss., embracing in substance Mr. Benton's bill, passed the Senate about 9 P.M. by a majority of 25 to 27. Foster and Jarnagin, of Tenn, voted against the bill. Merrick, Johnson, of Lou., Henderson, of Miss., and Bagby, of Ala., voted for it. The two last speeches made in the debate, were from Crittenden and Archer. The Senate took a recess until 6 in the evening. For an hour before the time arrived, spectators began to assemble in the lobby and galleries of the Senate Chamber. At six, the President took the chair, calling Senators to order. The large gilded chandelier hanging from the dome of the Senate hall, had its 26 lamps lighted up. Every nook and corner of the galleries were now crowded to overflowing with solid masses of human beings. The gentlemen made such an early and general rush to the Senate chamber, filling it up so completely, that few ladies were able to obtain an entrance, except those who went half an hour in advance of the time.
 The doors of the chamber were left open.—The anti-chamber was filled with ladies, who could hear the speaking inside through the open door. Never before, probably, did the Senate chamber contain so many spectators as on this important occasion.
 At an early stage of the proceedings Mr. Foster, of Tennessee, offered an amendment to Mr. Walker's amendment, the latter adding a portion of Mr. Benton's bill (See last page.)

to the House resolutions, leaving it discretionary with the President to adopt either plan in treating with Texas. This amendment was lost.

Mr. Berrien then offered an amendment which was voted down, 25 to 26. Mr. Walker's amendment to the House resolutions, was then reported, passed upon in committee, then in the whole House. The resolutions of the House with the amendment, then came up. Mr. Crittenden then moved to strike out the House resolutions altogether from the bill. This was put and lost—yeas and nays being called for in every case. Mr. Archer then moved that the House resolutions be stricken out, and an amendment which he offered, be inserted in place of them. This motion was put and lost. Finally, after several Whig Senators had spoken, giving their reasons for the vote they were about to give, and urging a new many of their most prominent objections to the whole bill, the same was put as amended, and carried in the affirmative—25 to 27, all the democratic Senators voting for it, with Johnson, of La. Merrick, of Maryland, and Henderson, of Mississippi, whigs, voting for it. There is no question that the amendments to the House resolutions will be immediately passed on reaching that body. So we may consider Texas as Annexed to this Union!! Swelling the number of States to 27.

The passage of the bill of annexation has given rise to many rumors. One is that Señor Almonte will in a day or two demand his passports and leave Washington. This piece of mock dignity will probably be prompted by Mr. Pakenham, the English minister, as we dare say Almonte will scarcely venture back to Mexico, where his master is lying in prison to await his trial.

The rumor afloat among persons well informed is, that our government has received despatches from Mexico, which evince a favourable and friendly disposition on the part of the new government of Mexico towards the United States, leaving, no probability of any hostile feelings being manifested against us on account of annexation.

It is also rumored that all the evidence in relation to the intrigues of England for the acquisition of California, has been laid before the Senate in secret session.

It is also said that two new regiments of troops will be forthwith raised and marched for Texas, to act with other troops at a proper time for taking possession of the country, and hoisting our glorious star and stripes over that beautiful land.

Mr. Pakenham has shown much anxiety in relation to the final passage of this measure, and I believe was present on the floor of the State chamber till a late hour to-night.

MR. TENKER,

Cirujano Dentista,

FROM the Cities of New York, Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo, and received by the Hon. Tribunal of Medicine of Buenos Aires, continuous his profession as usual at Calle de Cangallo, No. 31, near the old Theatre.

TEETH inserted on a new plan, without pain, by gold plate, or on pivot placed on the old roots. Teeth filled with gold, silver, or tin foil, and with mineral cement, so celebrated in France—the largest cavities can be filled without pain. He has a method of destroying the nerves, when exposed, entirely new in South America, as thousands can testify, with little or no pain. In this country the tartar accumulates very fast upon the teeth, and often requires to be taken off with instruments, he is able to do it in a very superior manner without the least injury to the enamel. All chemical methods break the enamel and ruin the Teeth. As an optical point of beauty the Teeth must ever stand pre-eminent, besides they give compass and volume to the voice, so requisite to the singer, orator, or commander of an army.

POWDER, very superior, to clean, whiten, and smooth the teeth, as well as to keep them free from tartar.

PAMPA WATER, distilled from herbs and roots, to cleanse the mouth and harden the gums when spongy.

BALSAM OF THE ANDES, an excellent specific to fasten Teeth that have become loose, it makes them firmer in their sockets.

The great Remedy called the "FIRK KING'S REMEDY," to cure the Tooth Ache,—never failing.

Tooth Brushes, very superior.

Remedies for Sale, with printed directions for their use.

MR. TENKER'S method of extracting Teeth is very superior, he does it any hour in the day or night, with little pain. Hours for operations from 9 to 5.
